EUNLAR – European Enlargement Observatory

Presentation: Joaquín Roy, Director, EU Center

When: Monday, November 11, 5-6pm

Where: Ferre 126, University of Miami. Coral Gables

Eloisa Vladescu received her Ph.D. in International Studies in 2013 from the University of Miami. Her research focuses on the impact of corruption and EU membership on FDI inflows in Eastern Europe. She is the author of several articles and chapters in edited volumes, including “The Evolution of European Union Security and Defense,” “The Assimilation of Immigrant Groups in France—Myth or Reality,” “Identity Politics and Liberal Pluralism in Romania: Are They Compatible in the Case of the Hungarian Minority?,” and co-author of “The 2009 European Parliament Campaigns: National, Eurosceptic, or Simply Lackluster?”. In addition, she has presented papers at many academic conferences, such as those organized by PIREDEU / EUI, CES, and ISA. Her research interests include patterns of investment in Eastern Europe, the difficulties associated with the EU’s eastern enlargement, and a particular focus on Romania’s economic and political future.
