Leadership: Do French & U.S. Approaches Differ?

Monday, March 3, 2014 | 8:00 AM | FIU Modesto A. Maidique Campus | CBC 232

This event explores the issue of leadership in the public sector as addressed by prominent figures from France's famed École Nationale d'Administration (ENA) and the Public Administration Department at Florida International University. This Dialogue on "Public Sector Leadership: the French and U.S. Experiences" is the second in a series of joint events. Attention will be given to the question of whether there are particular qualities that are of special importance to leaders in the public sector. Other topics include such practical issues as how to identify, select and train potential leaders.

Participants include the Director of ENA, Ms. Nathalie Loiseau, Renaud Dutreil, Former Minister and Philippe Létriliart, Consul General of France, Miami as well as students and faculty from ENA which is the main training ground for the leaders of the French government. U.S. participants, in addition to faculty and PhD students from Florida International University's Public Administration Department, will include former Miami-Dade County Commissioner Katy Sorenson, Miami-Dade County Deputy Mayor Alina Hudak, former Miami Gardens Mayor Shirley Gibson and Charles Scurr, Executive Director of the Citizen's Independent Transportation Trust.
