Free Trade or Protectionism? Isolationism amidst Globalization

Tuesday, September 20, 2016 | 12:00 PM - 1:30 PM | FIU Modesto A. Maidique Campus | GL 156

For the first installment of the Conversations on Europe series for 2016-17, our panel of experts will discuss the debate over free trade that has gained political traction in both the EU and the U.S. of late. What are the arguments being made for or against protectionism or fair trade on both sides of the Atlantic? How do we account for the rising hostility to NAFTA and TPP here in the U.S. and to TTIP and continued economic union in Europe? What are the post-Brexit vote implications?

Panelists:

- Alasdair Young, Professor & Co-Director for the Center for European and Transatlantic Studies, Georgia Tech
- Elvire Fabry, Senior Researcher, Notre Europe - Jacques Delors Institute
- David Cleeton, Professor of Economics & Department Chair, Illinois State University

Moderator:

- Allyson Delnore, Interim Director, European Studies Center, University of Pittsburgh

This event is free and open to all FIU students, but spaces are limited. Please RSVP to calyc@fiu.edu.
