

EUROPEAN UNION MIDDLE EAST

Relations in a Changing World

A Virtual Conference of the Miami-Florida Jean Monnet Center of Excellence

Wednesday, March 24, 2021
9 AM – 2:30 PM
Live Webinar

Registration Link: go.fiu.edu/eume

Full Agenda: go.fiu.edu/eumeagenda

Join us for a virtual conference examining the opportunities and constraints that exist for the EU as it seeks to maintain and expand diplomatic and commercial relations with the Middle East, while preserving the transatlantic partnership and promoting global stability. The conference will explore the ways in which bilateral relations are vital to the geostrategic and economic interests of both regions, and how security, human rights, refugees and other issues produce a complex interrelationship.

Jessy Abouarab
Florida International University

Cemil Aydin
University of North Carolina Chapel Hill

Antonella Caruso
LAMEDINA Institute

Jocelyne Cesari
Birmingham University

Juan R.I. Cole
University of Michigan

Mohammad Homayounvash
Miami-Dade College

Robert E. Hunter
John Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies

Tugrul Keskin
Shanghai University

Eric Lob
Florida International University

Mohiaddin Mesbahi
Florida International University

Costanza Musu
University of Ottawa

Terrence G. Peterson
Florida International University

Eugene Rogan
University of Oxford

Reza Sanati
Florida International University

Naisy Sarduy
Florida International University

Markus Thiel
Florida International University

Sarah Wolff
Queen Mary University of London

Co-sponsored by: Ruth K. and Shepard Broad Distinguished Lecture Series | Department of Politics and International Relations
Jean Monnet in the USA | Jaffer Institute for Interfaith Dialogue and Education at Miami-Dade College

