

Miami-Florida Jean Monnet Center of Excellence

Annual Conference
The Environment
Is for All of Us
European and Global Politics of Climate Justice

Keynote Address

Mon, March 9 | 2 PM – 3:15 PM
MARC Pavilion

Conference Panels

Tue, March 10 | 9:15 AM – 4:15 PM
Green School International Pavilion
(SIPA II, Room 102)

Florida International University
11200 SW 8 St., Miami, FL 33199

Co-sponsors:

*European & Eurasian
Studies Program*

Global Indigenous Forum

Department of Politics & International Relations

Institute of Environment, College of Arts, Sciences & Education

Václav Havel Program for Human Rights & Democracy

Ruth K. & Shepard Broad Distinguished Lecture Series

Dorothea Green Lecture Series

Scan QR code
to RSVP

Please join us for a timely conference examining how the climate crisis is reshaping justice, inclusion and responsibility in EU environmental politics. While climate change is a global challenge, its impacts—and the benefits of mitigation—are deeply unequal. Socio-economic, ethnic and social minorities, often least responsible for emissions, face disproportionate exposure and limited support. This conference asks urgent questions: How can climate policies address intersectional vulnerabilities? How can sustainability efforts avoid reproducing inequality? And how can the EU and its partners reconcile competing priorities while advancing environmental and social justice? Bringing together scholars, policymakers and practitioners, the conference explores transatlantic, local and global pathways toward a greener, more equitable future.

This is a public event.